“ *In memory of those whose spirits shines;
I'd like the tears of those who grieve, to dry before the sun of happy memories that I leave when life is done, an afterglow of smiles with echoes whispering softly down the ways.*

“y mom this is what you asked me to do OK! If there was ever a Grandma that really makes you believe in heaven my Grandma was the one for sure! I remember she use to tell me that when I was born I wasn't breathing because I had the umbilical chord around my neck and the doctor handed me to my Grandma and she said it took me a couple of minutes but I finally started breathing and crying! I rember having so much fun growing up I always wanted to be at grandmas with my uncles I think I might have even learned how to break dance too might have broke a few dishes in the process lol! I remember coming back from the lake and being so sunburned she was always there to help! I always liked picking the strawberries she grew every time I came over! She always had good cereal too! Once I got a little older I got a chance to live with her for a bit and I use to help her take care of her rose garden and I would pick flowers to put out on the kitchen table and she use to ask me how I kept them alive so long. I told her grandma water is life, I just remember to change the water every morning and they stay alive longer. I guess I must have picked up a thing or two from my grandpa and uncles growing up on the farm. The thing I remember most is every Thanksgiving the whole family would be there and my Grandma use to always ask me if I had a hollow leg because I always ate the most! Then one of my uncles showed me how to rub my feet on the carpet with socks on and touch the metal and it would shock me so needless to say I was running all over the house shocking myself because I thought it was cool! She was the best grandma ever and I know she's in heaven smiling watching over our family with all of our loved ones that are there. Grandma I love you and thank you for being the best grandma ever you will be forever loved and truly missed! Hey and at least you got to kiss grandpa one last time! Mom I'm totally balling my eyes out typing this but I hope Scott can make sure he writes it good and speaks with the love I have for grandma!
