“ I was with you so often. And I am glad I was there each and every time and even on that last day you took breath. I took our time together for granted I think. I regret that. Now you seem to be with me in my thoughts nearly everyday.

It seems like we were just cutting up about something and then that is if that was some other world that existed not too long ago or a lifetime ago. God I miss you so my friend.

I am glad you are at peace - but I would not be honest if I did not tell you I selfishly miss you.

What a ride it was Tim.

Thanks for being you and for making me part of the family. It really meant so much in all the decades we knew each other and even today means so very much.

Sorry it has taken me so long to write. I think I am still adjusting to this. I think I always will be adjusting to this. The forces I once believed were larger than life have passed on. I am coming to realize that does not mean you were not larger than life to me. You were and are. And that's ok. In fact, I consider myself lucky to have been with you as my best friend as long as we were - I mean as long as we still are.

Take care my friend.

“ Thinking of you all today and sending love. Uncle Tim was my buddy when I was a kid (I was 5 and he was 13) and new to the Terry Family. When I was a teenager, we talked a lot about music and he introduced me to Jackson Brown. He also later introduced me to the Christmas movie, A Christmas Story - which I do watch at least twice each year! He was always kind to me and I loved being around him. Although I have not seen him in many years, I do think about him often and I will miss him.
